Fareless System Initiative (FSI)

Task Force set up in September: 19 Metro staff members from throughout the agency

Research and analysis of all issues associated with implementing fareless

- Operational needs
- Ridership impacts
- Equity considerations
- Safety and security considerations
- Costs to implement and ways to pay for fareless
- Relation to other transit operators in Los Angeles County

Why is Metro Considering a Fareless System?

- Equity benefit for many riders— 70% of all riders have annual incomes under $35,000
- Fareless would save riders up to $1,200 each annually; savings can be spent within local economies
- Incentive to return to transit in safe post-pandemic period
- Supports state's GHG reduction goals
- Creative national leadership for innovation and equity

Fareless Options Metro is Considering

Many different concepts are being examined

- Scenario 1 – Low-Income & K-12 Students (leading concept)
- Scenario 2 - Fully Fareless Pilot
- Scenario 3 - Peak/Off-Peak
- Scenario 4 - Bus Only
- Scenario 5 - Rail Only
- Scenario 6 - Geographic

Leading Concept: for Full Public Consideration and Comment

Funding to Cover Costs of Initiative

Examining all possible sources of Federal, State, and Local funding

- Different funding sources have different eligibility requirements
- Examples of potential sources

Federal	State	New/Proposed
CMAQ (annually apportioned) availability being reviewed	The Transit and Intercity Rail Capital Program (TIRCP)	Freedom to Move demonstration grants (new bill pending in Congress)
FTA Innovation Grants	Low Carbon Transit Operations Program (LCTOP) availability being reviewed

- From all of the existing and possible new funding sources, and Board funding discretion, reasonable to project funding for 18-month pilot

Fare Capping

September 2020: Directors Butts and Barger put forth Motion 31

- Directed development of budget & timeline for fare capping options
- To be presented in same Board cycle as FSI

Fare capping can work with FSI by offering a benefit to riders who do not participate in the FSI pilot
